

Sarah Guibord: Awesome Photographer

If you are looking for family photographs for this holiday season – or for any reason – I highly recommend Sarah Guibord of Sarah Guibord Photography.

Sarah specializes in taking photos of people – not objects or places. She also loves working with families and kids. For that reason, I asked her recently to take some photos of my family, and I couldn't be happier with the process or the photographs.

She is especially good at making people feel comfortable during their photo session. When she works with families, she caters to the kids, which helps the parents have genuine smiles that come from laughing at what she does to interact with the children.

Overall, it's just a fun experience that leaves everyone happy and anxious to see the final product.

I especially love the fact that she takes a natural approach to editing her photos. She doesn't manipulate them to make them look like something or someone else. Instead, she enhances the natural beauty of the images.

That goes along with her philosophy of "capturing the beauty of life."

"Whatever is in your life that you consider beautiful or want to be reminded of, it is my passion to capture that for you," Sarah says. "I will capture the beauty of your life so you will have creative and naturally beautiful images to showcase for years to come.

That includes everything from photos of engagements, weddings, boudoir beauty shots, pregnant women, newborns and entire families. If it's got people in it, she's your gal.

For more information about Sarah or to see some of her awesome photos, visit <http://sarahguibord.com/>. She also can be reached at 720-308-1109 or by email at sarahguibord@gmail.com.